

Northbridge University

Student Handbook 2026

Academic year 2026 — General student guidance

1. Welcome

The Northbridge University Student Handbook provides general guidance about academic responsibilities, student services, campus life, university procedures, and student conduct.

Students should use this handbook together with current programme information, university policies, and the academic calendar.

2. Student Responsibilities

Students are responsible for managing their academic and administrative responsibilities throughout their studies.

- Complete module registration within the designated period.
- Monitor academic and administrative deadlines.
- Attend required academic activities.
- Complete assessments according to module requirements.
- Follow examination and academic integrity rules.
- Check official university communication regularly.

3. Academic Communication

Important information may be communicated through the student information system, university email, official announcements, the university website, and academic support staff.

Students should regularly check official channels because deadlines, procedures, and arrangements may change.

4. Academic Support

The Academic Support Office can provide guidance on programme requirements, module registration, academic progression, study planning, module changes, assessments, examinations, internships, deferment, and withdrawal procedures.

Students are encouraged to seek assistance early when they are uncertain about an academic requirement.

5. Library Services

The university library provides printed and electronic academic resources, study spaces, computer facilities, borrowing services, and research assistance.

Students must follow library rules and return borrowed materials according to the applicable borrowing period.

6. Information Technology Services

IT Support assists students with university accounts, email, learning platforms, campus internet, computer laboratories, and technical problems.

Students should protect their account credentials and report suspected account security problems.

7. Student Conduct

Students are expected to behave respectfully toward students, staff, and visitors and to use university facilities responsibly.

Students must follow university rules, examination procedures, and academic integrity requirements.

8. Academic Integrity

Students must complete academic work honestly. Academic misconduct may include plagiarism, cheating, unauthorized collaboration, submitting another person's work as one's own, or using unauthorized materials during an examination.

9. Health, Safety and Emergencies

Students should follow university health and safety instructions and use designated emergency procedures when an emergency occurs.

Students should follow instructions provided by university staff during emergency situations.

10. Complaints and Appeals

Students who wish to raise an academic or administrative concern should follow the appropriate complaint or appeal procedure and submit required information within the applicable deadline.

Students should retain copies of important requests and correspondence.

11. Important Student Services

Students may access Academic Support, Student Administration, IT Support, Library Services, and other university offices depending on the issue they need to resolve.

Students should contact the relevant office rather than relying on unofficial information when making important academic or administrative decisions.

12. Summary

Students should monitor official communication, meet deadlines, maintain academic integrity, use university services responsibly, and seek assistance when they are uncertain about a requirement.

Programme-specific requirements and current official procedures take precedence where applicable.
